

1937 ACTOR PRESTON FOSTER

Thank you for sharing -Hover images for Pinterest

10

SHARES

FACEBOOKTWITTER

Preston Foster, screen actor, is never too busy to play with his black chow, Ching, who doesn't care for many persons other than his master. Ching is often Preston's sole companion on trips aboard his cruiser, Zoa III.

June 26 1937 Actor Preston Foster and Ching - ©Sandra Miller Collection

SOURCE-Preston Foster (August 24, 1900 – July 14, 1970), sometimes credited as Preston S. Foster, was an American stage and film actor. He also had a career as a vocalist.

Foster entered films in 1929 after acting on Broadway. He was still appearing on Broadway as late as November 1931, in the cast of the play Two Seconds. He soon reprised that role in a filmed version. His most notable films include Doctor X (1932), I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang (1932), Annie Oakley (1935), The Last Days of Pompeii (1935), The Informer (1935), and My Friend Flicka (1943).^[1]

More archived posts you might enjoy:

MAUD ALICE EARL CHOW
PORTRAITS

1898 Kai Tai - A very early smooth chow in Philade...

and Boltes Co., New York;
JUDGING BEST IN SHOW AT THE CHOW CHOW CLUB'
WALDORF ASTORIA, NEW YORK, U.S.A.

ARTICLE 1930- OUR DOGS

MAGAZINE- The Mulfra Kennel...

A BAD AND A GOOD CHOW CHOW

What is good and bad in a Chow. The drawing on the left depicts a unsup blank; large, coarse ears, set on side of head; snipe, foxy muzzle; ex idealized Chow, the tremendous muzzle; intense snarl; deep, barrel head pastern; correct tail carriage; and straight hocks being noted

ARTICLE -1925 The New Chow

Standard -AKC Gazette -...