ACCOMPLISHING in a short time what often takes many years to do, Miss Williamson is to be congratulated on the success of her enthusiasm and perseverance. Starting on right lines by the purchase of stock combining the best blood lines in the breed, her kennel in the last few years has steadily forged to the front until young, home-bred stock are now well embarked on winning careers. The dogs in the Munan Kennel are not looked on merely through their intrinsic value, for Miss Williamson keeps the welfare of the dogs and the breed before every other consideration.

Housed in excellent surroundings, the young stock has every chance to develop, and there are already such winners as Munan Leo and Munan Maestro, but the best is yet to come. Munan Chinky Choo, mated to Julia May Wong (dam of Braw Lad o' Jethart), has produced what many forecast as the best puppy of the year in Munan Benito. This youngster combines everything which goes to make the perfect Chow, and a very large offer from a leading breeder has been refused for him. He will shortly be starting his career in the capable hands of his owner.

Popular success has deservedly come the way of the Munan Kennel, for no society or show has approached Miss Williamson for assistance and been turned away empty handed, and many societies in the Sheffield area owe her a debt of gratitude. Every breed needs patrons of this calibre who are willing to put into the breed more than they take out, and, realising this, the many successes of the Munan Kennel are never begrudged.

CHU CHU OF GREENHILL has been termed by many of our leading authorities as the "great little dog." He is not a big one, but is full of substance, and ideal for light leggy bitches. He excels above all in temperament; a glance at this entirely untouched photograph will give you a good impression of his expression. He has good bone, a perfectly straight front, a great well-coupled body, and carries a wealth of coat and mane. He is a bright true red in colour, with a good head and powerful foreface. He has been consistently shown and includes in his wins over 50 first prizes, together with many special prizes, including those for best exhibit all breeds. It is his perfect balance which appeals to the judges, together with excellent ring manners, qualities which he can be relied upon to transmit to his progeny. He is a proved sire, and presents an excellent stud proposition at his modest fee.

BRAW LAD O' JETHART is too well known in Chow Chow exhibition circles to need any description; but for those who do not attend the principal shows, the following are a few of his chief qualities. He is one of the best-bred dogs at public stud to-day, as a glance at his pedigree will show. He excels in bone, body, and substance, and has the perfect Chow action. His head is a picture, with a wonderful expression which he passes on to his puppies. He is a good red in colour and has a good jacket and carries plenty of mane. He has been fearlessly shown in the best of competition, and is the winner of over 300 firsts and innumerable best-in-show awards, and is up to the best championship class. He is the sire of some outstanding puppies, and may be truly described as a great stud dog, a prolific and sure stock getter. He can be recommended with the greatest confidence.
